DAYS OF HIGH CELEBRATION FOR ST. JOSEPH SISTERS' CENTENARY

The celebration of the centenary of the Sisters of St. Joseph of Toronto which had such a gloriously happy beginning in the Solemn Pontifical Mass in St. Michael's Cathedral on Saturday, Oct. 6, continued for three days and was the occasion of many joyful reunions of former students of St. Joseph's College, St. Joseph's College School, St. Joseph's High School and St. Michael's and St. Joseph's Hospitals. Representatives of St. Joseph's Communities included Sisters from Philadelphia, Rochester, Troy (a Province of St. Louis), Erie, Buffalo, Hamilton, London, Peterborough, Lindsay, Pembroke and North Bay. The Superiors General of Hamilton, London, Peterborough and North Bay were among the guests, as also Mother Provincial of the Holy Cross Sisters and her Secretary and the Superiors of Penetanguishene and Lafontaine, in each of which places the Sisters of St. Joseph have left memories of their labors in the years before the Holy Cross Sisters took over the schools.

Alumnae at Luncheon

About 500 graduates and former students of the College School and hospitals attended the luncheon which followed the Mass on Saturday. The College School Gymnasium where it was held was decorated in brown and gold with added clusters of autumn leaves. An overflow of guests filled the adjoining cafeteria and loud speakers conveyed to them the speeches from the head table at which Miss Miriam Walsh, an Honorary Alumna, presided. The guests were welcomed by Rev. Mother St. Brigid, Superior General.

Toasts were proposed and responses made on behalf of the Sisters of St. Joseph, the Federation of College Alumnae, the College, the College School, the High School, St. Michael's and St. Joseph's Hospitals; the speakers including Miss Walsh were Mrs. Rose Reid, Mrs. Sadie Morrow Roesler, Dr. Victoria Carson, Miss Jean Lahey, Dr. Florence Quinlan, Miss Virna Ross, Mrs. Isabel Abbott Mosteller, Miss Teresa Doyle, Miss Margaret Donnelly, Miss Gwenyth Ferguson, Mrs. K. M. Gies, Miss Margaret Kelly and Miss Helen Kelly. At the close of the luncheon a presentation of a spiritual bouquet and a sheaf of St. Joseph Lilies was made to Rev. Mother St. Brigid.

Documentary Film

Following the luncheon a group picture was taken on the grounds, and the afternoon was spent in the Auditorium where time passed all too quickly as the various missions and works of the Sisters of St. Joseph came to life on the screen—from far-away Prince Rupert in all its beauty, with its churches, convent, school, Sisters and pupils; Vancouver, where the audience viewed St. Patrick's Convent and Schools as centres of activity for Sisters and pupils; Comox in its lovely setting of mountains, sea, lawns and flowers, with St. Joseph's Hospital, modern in every detail; Rosetown with its Saskatchewan Prairies all about and its happy groups of day and resident pupils with their Sister teachers; St. Anne's Church, School and Convent in Winnipeg, with its active classes of little children in a humble setting all its own. St. Joseph's College, the College School, St. Joseph's and Our Lady of Mercy Hospitals and the House of Providence, on the screen in turn, spoke volumes of the wonderfully full and varied days of the Sisters in charge. St. Patrick's Orphanage, Montreal, showed still another phase of work, picturing the children in action in a St. Patrick's Day Concert and again in full enjoyment of a picnic. Graduation Days in St. Catharines and Barrie were colorful and life-like, while another holiday note came in the form of postulants at Invermara, the vacation home of the Sisters on Lake Simcoe.

Monsignor Davis was celebrant of the Solemn Benediction in the Convent Chapel at four o'clock with Rev. G. Flahiff, C.S.B. and Rev. Ignatius Brady, O.F.M., as deacon and subdeacon. Following Benediction, tea was served at St. Joseph's College.

St. Michael's Hospital graduates spent the afternoon at the hospital and the Sister guests visited the House of Providence, Sacred Heart Villa and St. Joseph's-on-the-Lake. In the evening the Sisters enjoyed a play "Blue Mantle" based on the early days of the pioneer Sisters of Toronto and presented by the postulants and Junior Sisters. Their Excellencies, Archbishop Pocock and Bishop Berry, with Monsignor Davis, were honored guests.

Father McCorkell Preaches

On Sunday, Oct. 7, "the Anniversary Day", the Chapel was filled to capacity for the Solemn High Mass celebrated by Most Rev. P. F. Pocock, Archbishop of Winnipeg. Rev. W. J. Roach, C.S.B., was assistant priest, Rev. F. Orsini, C.S.B. and Rev. J. Conway, C.S.B. were deacon and subdeacon. Present in the sanctuary were Most Rev. Martin M. Johnson, Bishop of Nelson; Most Rev. Joseph G. Berry, Bishop of Peterborough and Most Rev. M. Baudoux, Bishop of St. Paul, Alberta. The Sisters' Choir sang the Mass. Very Rev. E. J. McCorkell, C.S.B. delivered the sermon, during the course of which he dwelt on the spiritual qualities needed in the Apostle and, recalling the foundation of the Order of St. Joseph in France and the arrival of the first four Sisters in Canada, he reviewed the early hardships they endured with their Superior Mother Delphine and indicated that the very virtues they practised were those still most evident in the community.

Reunion Centenary Tea.

A brief summary of the works of the Sisters followed, and referring to the long association of the Basilian Fathers with the Community, he concluded by expressing warmest congratulations and prayerful wishes for the future.

The buffet-breakfast in the cafeteria after Mass afforded another opportunity for the students of "other days" to renew old acquaintances and the time before the Holy Hour in the Cathedral was spent visiting familiar haunts in school or dormitory and newer classrooms in later additions to the school. Benediction of the Blessed Sacrament took place in the Convent Chapel at seven-thirty, after which there was another showing of the pictures of Community works.

Communion of Saints

On Monday again at ten o'clock the Chapel was filled for the Solemn High Mass offered by Most Rev. B. I. Webster, for deceased Sisters and former pupils. Rev. W. H. Hingston, S.J. was assistant priest, Rev. D. J. Hourigan, S. J. master of ceremonies, Rev. F. C. Keenan, S.J. was deacon and Rev. J. Hochban, S.J. subdeacon. Very Rev. F. P. Cunerty, C.S.S.R. was present in the sanctuary. Very Rev. G. E. Nunan, S.J. gave the sermon, using as his text the motto of the Community, "It is the love of Christ that has brought us together and made us one." He referred to the celebration of the day as the spiritual home-coming of the invisible ranks of departed Sisters and pupils and stressed the reality of their plea for prayers or if already in glory, their ability and eagerness to help the living. In conclusion he recalled the consoling truth of the Communion of Saints, reminding his listeners that as the love of Christ once gathered together all those for whom Mass had been said, so the same love would hold and keep them one.

Auld Lang Syne

A breakfast-luncheon was served in the cafeteria which was once more a scene of happy reunions amid gay chatter. Among the Alumnae and former pupils were a few whose school days date back forty, fifty and even sixty years, while Miss Nicholson of St. Catharines, was a pupil seventy-five years ago. Miss Margaret Stormont, Toronto, recalled the sixtieth and seventy-fifth anniversary of the Community, and Miss Angela Henry of Buffalo could talk of days quite as far or farther back. Mrs. A. J. McDonagh and Mrs. Vernon Greene could likewise recall experiences of the far-away past and teachers long since dead. Among the guests at St. Michael's Hospital was Miss Annie Chrysler Hilliker of Simcoe, who graduated in 1894, the only surviving member of that first graduating class.

At two o'clock many of the guests made the trip by bus or car to St. Joseph's High School, where after a tour of the building, the Sisters were hostesses at a tea served in the school cafeteria. During the afternoon Sisters from out-of-town were given the opportunity of visiting St. Michael's Hospital, the High School, Our Lady of Mercy and St. Joseph's Hospitals.

Te Deum

The closing event of the three days was the Solemn Pontifical Benediction followed by the Te Deum at seven-thirty, for which event the beautiful Gothic Chapel was resplendent with lights and flowers, and once more was filled to the very doors. His Eminence Cardinal McGuigan was celebrant, assisted by Rev. L. Wall and Rev. A. MacDonald, C.S.S.R. with Rev. A. McGregor, C.S.S.R. and Rev. E. Kennedy, C.S.S.R. as deacon and subdeacon. Rev. E. J. McGuigan, S.J., Rev. W. J. Roach, C.S.B. and Rev. W. J. Hingston, S.J. were in the sanctuary. In an address after Benediction the Cardinal expressed gratitude for the past and hope for the future "shaped and patterned after what is best and greatest of the years 1851 to 1951." He mentioned Sister Immaculata who died so suddenly two weeks ago and pictured her as bearing to the Throne of God for her Community, the Centenary Scroll, recording all the service of One Hundred Years. He concluded with assurance for the future of the Community if it be always guided by the three lights of faith, hope and charity. The Te Deum sung by the Choir brought the ceremony to an end.

In the reception room later, the Sisters in turn greeted the Cardinal and many of the guests did also as they gathered about him in little friendly groups. Farewells were said with evident reluctance and three never-to-be-forgotten days came to an end on the same happy grateful note with which they had commenced.

Parish Day

Wednesday, Oct. 10 was "Parish Day" and Masses were offered in the parishes where the Sisters of St. Joseph teach, for the past and present teachers and pupils of the School. In the evening the clergy of the Archdiocese were entertained at a centennial dinner at the Mother House. Very Rev. E. J. McCorkell, C.S.B. was chairman. His Excellency Bishop Webster was guest of honor in the unavoidable absence of the Cardinal. His Excellency addressed a few gracious words of welcome in the name of the Sisters to the clergy present. In the course of his remarks Father McCorkell spoke of the association of the Basilians with the Sisters of St. Joseph as stretching back over the whole one hundred years. Monsignor Ronan brought centenary greetings from the Archdiocese; Very Rev. D. Ehmann, C.S.S.R. spoke on behalf of the Religious Communities of the Archdiocese; Msgr. McDonagh for the places outside of the Archdiocese where the Sisters work, and Rev. D. A. Lord, S.J., spoke on behalf of St. Louis, the cradle of the Congregation in America, and as a brother-priest of Rev. J. P. Medaille, S.J., founder of the Order in France three hundred years ago.

Toronto Nurse is Guest of Princess

By Kaye Peer

Miss Alice McCabe, Health Supervisor at St. Joseph's Hospital, has given Gossip a sidelight on our Royal Couple which the newspapers so far seem to have missed.

Nurse McCabe was invited by the Princess to have dinner on the Royal Train that memorable Saturday of the stopover in Toronto. This bit of thoughtfulness stems from Miss McCabe's service overseas with the Canadian Army Medical Corps.

She received an invitation to Windsor Castle in May, 1944, just as Allied war machinery really began to roll. Marshalling of army equipment threw a grenade into a lot of plans, among them the Royal bid to a cup of tea. Miss McCabe was delayed by duties a full hour and reached the Castle too late to meet the Princess. However, their nurse-governess, Miss Knight who died two years later, introduced her to Mistress-of-the-Robes, Margaret MacDonald. Neither nursing sister nor wardrobe mistress forgot that afternoon. They have corresponded occasionally so when the Canadian tour was arranged, Miss McCabe hospitably wrote Miss MacDonald and arranged for a reunion in Toronto.

That particular Saturday, while on duty, Nurse McCabe was handed this message, "The Royal Train wishes to speak with you." After she and everyone around her had recovered from the shock the Nurse telephoned and found out why:

When Elizabeth knew that the two friends were again to meet, she wondered if Miss McCabe wouldn't like to come and keep Miss MacDonald company while she was at the Royal York. Miss McCabe would, and did, and was a guest for three hours.

Elizabeth was already dressed for the State Dinner when Miss McCabe reached the train. The Princess called out a friendly "Come in", meaning into her private apartment. So, for the next 15 minutes, Elizabeth, Margaret and Alice had a cozy chat.

What did they talk about? Well, quite a few things that Miss McCabe will not repeat. They talked also of Elizabeth's children, of this town's hockey game (wished it had been longer), of Toronto hospitality, which they were sincerely enjoying, and of travelling by Royal Train—which by the way, was not luxurious but was compactly furnished.

And clothes, of course. "I think this is my loveliest dress," said her Royal Highness of the gown she was wearing. It was the turquoise and gold brocade trimmed in turquoise velvet. And the jewels! from the smallish solid tiara to the diamond necklace, pendant and earrings, the family miniatures set in jewels and the Order of the Garter. Margaret MacDonald has the responsibility of caring for and selecting the jewels as well as the wardrobe.

Conversation went smoothly, said Miss McCabe. "The Princess puts you at ease because, in a small group, she is perfectly at ease herself."

Here are Miss McCabe's close-up impressions of the Royal Visitor.

She seemed not at all tired, despite reports, was gracious and in fact vivacious. The highlights of her chestnut hair are lovely, her complexion more than beautiful, she is in all a very pretty girl. She is also a proud mother.

Philip, who joined them later in their pre-dinner talk, is quite witty, as Canadians know by now and most debonair.

Miss McCabe noticed a certain camaraderie between the Royal Pair and the Staff. The Staff members seemed genuinely fond of both of them. As for Elizabeth and Philip—she looked toward him for help quite often, and he gave the impression of taking care of her. He was the one who said "I think it's almost time to leave." And about their love affair—the Staff say he was holding the torch for her a long time before she was conscious of him.

As husband and wife Miss McCabe observed, they have "something you can't quite put your finger on. I think it's a respect for each other's opinions and for each other. And there's somehow, a quiet dignity about them that's unusual in young couples nowadays."

Editor's Note—And there's a something about Alice McCabe we can't quite put our finger on either—a quiet intelligent charm. No wonder the Princess discovered she had fifteen minutes to spare.

ST. MICHAEL'S NURSE HONORED BY THE PRINCESS

(Reprinted from the Woodbridge Advertiser)

Miss Alice McCabe, daughter of Thomas McCabe of Caledon East, brought distinction to this village and to Peel County in being presented to Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh on board the Royal Train in Toronto on Saturday, Oct. 13. The Command Visit arose from Miss McCabe's friendship with Miss Margaret MacDonald, who is in charge of the Royal Staff. Miss McCabe had served overseas two and a half years as a Nursing Sister with the Canadian Army. Just before D-Day in 1944 she paid a visit to the late Miss Alice Knight at Windsor Castle. Miss Knight, a sister of the late Mrs. Robert Cooper of Caledon East, had been nurse-governess in the Royal Household at that time. The fact that Miss McCabe had been travelling on a late train had caused her to miss meeting the Princess by 10 minutes when making the 1944 visit. It was then that her acquaintanceship with Miss MacDonald began. On the Royal Train in Toronto, she had the memorable pleasure of talking to the Princess and Prince Philip for ten minutes before they left to attend the State Dinner. Miss McCabe rode from Caledon East to Toronto with a neighbor, Henry Noble, son of Rev N. H. Noble. During the evening, she and Mr. Noble enjoyed a tour of the train and were entertained at dinner by Miss MacDonald. Miss McCabe, who has been health supervisor at St. Joseph's Hospital in Toronto since September, spends each week-end at home here with her father. Previously she had been foster home visitor at the Catholic Welfare Bureau in Toronto. She had graduated as a nurse from St. Michael's Hospital in 1939.

PRENATAL TEACHERS' MANUAL

In May, 1950, the Prenatal Education Committee of the Welfare Council of Greater Toronto published, in booklet form, the teaching material prepared for use in its prenatal classes. The manual is composed of material for a series of ten lessons and the contents have been approved by the Departments of Obstetrics, Paediatrics and Psychology of the University of Toronto. It was intended primarily to be used as a guide for teachers of such classes, but is also of value to any nurse engaged in obstetrical practice. Anyone who thinks of establishing prenatal classes would be well advised to have such a guide as this. It contains such aids as: a list of necessary equipment, materials for display and where they may be obtained, a complete bibliography, questionnaire and registration card. From this card information may be obtained about the sources of referral and this in turn helps to point up the strengths and weaknesses of the publicity program. The questionnaire is sent to each pupil two months after her baby is born and approximately 43% of these are returned. It is interesting to note that the usual return on a general questionnaire is approximately 15% and the large return of these would seem to indicate a keen interest on the part of the pupils, and need we say that the pupils enjoy the opportunity of helping with suggestions for changes or improvements in the content as well as being instrumental in publicising the classes. Friends (i.e., former pupils) are, and have been, one of the best sources of referrals through the six years of the classes existence. In the year 1949-50 (a period of ten months, for the classes close during July and August) eight hundred and seventy-one young women registered for these in 11 centres. The numbers have been steadily growing since 1944 when the classes began with a registration of about 36 pupils.

The sponsorship of and the cooperative planning for, these classes are unique. They represent a total community effort of all those interested in prenatal education. The public health nurses (The Toronto and Etobicoke Departments of Health, East York-Leaside Health Unit, Victorian Order of Nurses and St. Elizabeth Visiting Nurses) teach the nursing classes, the Visiting Homemakers the nutrition classes, the Red Cross Volunteers assist in registering pupils and in serving refreshments, and the librarian from the local branch of the Public Library comes once in each series to explain the community resources in books on relevant topics. The importance of the budget cannot be overlooked and is of special interest to anyone who plans to establish a class. The participating organizations finance and operate the eleven classes on a budget of $1000 a year, each agency contributing approximately in proportion to the number of teachers it provides. The Welfare Council provides the coordinating body, gives clerical time and secures newspaper publicity, an item which is indispensable. Such a plan as this will interest public health nurses for it could well be adapted or modified to suit the needs and resources of any community.

Copies of the manual may be obtained from the Welfare Council Health Division Secretary, EM. 3-4971, 100 Adelaide St. W. Toronto, at a cost of $1.00.

Prenatal classes are held weekly throughout the city. Times and centres may be obtained from the Welfare Council—Health Division.

Pontifical Mass — St. Michael's Cathedral — Opening Day.

ST. JOSEPH'S PUPILS RETURN FOR CENTENARY CELEBRATION

(Reprinted from The Globe and Mail)

To the ringing of the old school bell, nearly 500 St. Joseph graduates and former pupils gathered in the brown-and-gold decked gymnasium of their Alma Mater on Wellesley St. W. Saturday for the opening luncheon of the centenary celebration of the Sisters of St. Joseph.

Preceding the luncheon, James Cardinal McGuigan celebrated Pontifical Mass in St. Michael's Cathedral. Present were alumnae members, college students, uniformed graduate and student nurses of the three hospitals operated by the Sisters of St. Joseph, and members of many other religious communities in their distinctive habits.

Most Rev. Philip F. Pocock, co-adjutor archbishop of Winnipeg, paid tribute to the Sisters' century of service in the fields of teaching, nursing, care of the aged and orphans. This work had a very humble beginning in Toronto and today more than 2,000 Sisters are engaged in it throughout Canada.

Luncheon guests, who included members of the five Toronto alumnae associations, were welcomed by Rev. Mother St. Brigid, mother-general of the community. She expressed the hope that centenary days would be "a time of cherished associations renewed and of links of affection forged stronger for the future." She reminded that all St. Joseph houses and hospitals in Toronto are having "open house" during the centenary.

Included in the luncheon gathering were graduates of the 1880's as well as those of more recent years.

Among earlier graduates is Mrs. Annie Chrysler Hilliker, only surviving member of the first class of five nurses to graduate from St. Michael's in 1894 and still an active alumnae. Also on hand was Mrs. E. C. Fraser, first graduate from St. Joseph's College when it was affiliated, through St. Michael's College, with the University of Toronto in 1911. Other early graduates were Mrs. A. J. McDonagh and Mrs. Vernon W. Greene, pupils of the convent on St. Alban's St.

Through the brief speeches ran a thread of history showing the development of both educational institutions and hospitals under care of the community during the last 100 years. Miss Gwenyth Ferguson of the city health department reminded that St. Michael's Hospital, established in 1892 in the old Bond Street Baptist Church, has since graduated 2,034 nurses and "is today regarded as one of the best medical centres in Canada."

Miss Margaret Kelly recalled that St. Joseph's opened in 1921 "with 100 beds and one patient—a man—who was very well looked after," has since expanded to a 600-bed capacity, and has an alumnae membership of 700.

Miss Virna Ross, president, St. Joseph's College School Alumnae, said that the first St. Joseph Academy, the little White House on Power St., opened in 1854. It has grown to the largest women's private school in Canada. Miss Jean Lahey referred to the advantages available to Catholic women students since affiliation of the college with the university.

Dr. Sadie Morrow Roesler, co-founder of the Federation of Convent Alumnae, which today has 86 associations in 26 teaching communities, and Dr. Victoria Mueller Carson, federation president, spoke of the co-operation always extended by St. Joseph's, which had established one of the federation's first scholarships, and has twice opened its doors to conventions.

Responding to the toast to the Sisters of St. Joseph proposed by Mrs. Rose Reid, Miss Miriam Walsh referred to the reception given a new book on the history of the community by Sister Mary Agnes. Other speakers were: Dr. Florence Quinlan, Miss Teresa Doyle, Miss Margaret Donnelly, Mrs. Mosteller and Mrs. K. M. Gies.

Presentation of a sheaf of St. Joseph's lilies and a spiritual bouquet was made to Mother St. Brigid by centenary guests.

Bishop B. I. Webster was celebrant of Pontifical Mass that morning in the convent chapel and Very Rev. George Nunan of the Jesuit Seminary was the speaker. Cardinal McGuigan celebrated Benediction following which there was a reception in the convent parlors.

LOCAL NURSE SERVING IN WARFRONT HOSPITAL

(Reprinted from Syracuse Herald-Journal)

WITH FIRST CORPS IN KOREA—Capt. Elizabeth I. Burns, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Burns, of 207 Twin Hill Dr., is serving as a nurse with the 8063d Mobile Army Surgical Hospital in Korea.

Captain Burns is a member of a unit which has been credited with the saving of many lives during the Korean campaign. Highly mobile, the 8063d MASH is in effect a modern hospital, giving full medical and surgical service to fallen UN personnel within minutes after battle action.

Evacuated from the battlefield by helicopter and ambulance, the wounded are given emergency treatment at the 8063d which is stationed only a few miles behind the front lines.

As the battle surges forward or recedes, the hospital accompanies the fighting units. Following emergency treatment, the more seriously wounded are evacuated by helicopter and ambulance to hospitals in the rear areas of Korea or to Japan.

Captain Burns entered military service in June, 1943, and saw service in the European Theatre, Japan, prior to her assignment in the Philippine Islands and in Korea.

The unit with which she serves has a 60-bed capacity but recently cared for more than 800 casualties within a 24-hour period. For its contribution to the UN cause, the 8063d MASH was recently awarded the Presidential Unit Citation.

Elizabeth is a 1942 graduate of St. Michael's School of Nursing.
